

Jingliao Old Street

The traditional wedding customs are complex, but they are filled with the old ancestors' wisdom. They have deep meanings, representing the consideration of the elders. The bride prepares "dudou." It means the bride will be fortunate, bringing fortune to her husband's home. "Charcoal" and "iron nail" are prepared. They mean the bride will give birth to a healthy boy. "Leather ruler" is prepared to expect the bride to measure everything before action in getting along with her father-in-law and mother-in-law. "Hot water" is prepared. Pour the water of the bride's house to the water container at the bridegroom's house, meaning the bride will adapt herself into the environment of her husband's house without any difficulty.
